Letter from Former Member

To whom this may concern:

Approximately 20 some years ago I belonged to the Wingmasters. I moved away from the area and at that time I had a nephew that was interested in r.c. flying. When I moved I could not take my r.c. equipment with me so my brother took all my equipment thinking my nephew would make use of it.

This didn't happen and it has been in storage since. Recently my brother decided it was time to clean out the basement and asked me if I wanted any of my r.c. equipment back. While going through my things I found an envelope marked Wingmasters. In that envelope was $142.00 cash. I have no idea what it was from but I feel like it needs to be given to the club. I sincerely apologize for this oversight and hope it didn't cause any severe issues. I have included some extra. Please use as you see fit. Again my sincere apologies.

Thank you Mr. Grossnickle for remembering us - we appreciate it.

Debate heats up over privacy rights as Congress compels the FAA to provide UAS access to the national air-space.

sUAS NPRM Release Date Slips Again...

According to a recent update on DOT's Rulemaking epage the projected publication date for the small Unmanned Aircraft Systems sUAS Notice of Proposed Rulemaking NPRM has been pushed back to July 2012. Though this has not yet been confirmed by the FAA Unmanned Aircraft Program Office UAPO, sources close to the office say that the rule still resides at the Office of the Secretary of Transportation OST and at this point it's anybody's guess as to when the NPRM will be published. My guess is that recent provisions in the FAA reauthorization bill in regards to the commercial and public use of UAS, as well as model aircraft, have created the need to revisit several portions of the proposed rule.
